GENERATION I

1 HUGH<sup>1</sup> MOSHER, b. ca. 1623, according to his testimony on 4 March 1662/3, when he said that he was "aged thirty or thereabouts"; d. Newport RI before 7 Dec. 1713, when his will was probated in Bristol Co. MA.

He m. (1) REBECCA MAXSON, daughter of Richard and Rebecca Maxson of Portsmouth RI; d. between 29 Dec. 1707 and 25 Feb. 1707/8. She is frequently identified erroneously as a daughter of John Harndell of Newport, probably because of some unfortunate omissions in the abstract of his will in Austin, Genealogical Dictionary of RI. It is dated 9 Feb. 1685 and proved in 1687. The original, in the library of the Newport Historical Society, in Book 5, pp. 131-2, names daughter Mary Stanton, her husband John, and their children, who received the land and buildings. It also names "daughter-in-law Rebeckah Mosure, wife of Hugh Mosure of Portsmouth," to whom he gave only a good ewe sheep; and "son-in-law John Maxson," to whom he also gave a ewe. Austin omitted the words "in-law before Rebeckah," also all mention of John Maxson. "In-law" usually meant step at that time and it certainly does this time, for the wife of a son would have borne the name Harndell. The name of the stepson identifies her maiden name as Maxson.

Hugh m. (2) before 25 Feb. 1708 SARAH (BUTCHER) HARDING widow of the Rev. John Harding. She d. Newport May or June 1716.

He first appears in RI records with his purchase 29 June 1660, of land in Westerly. Evidence is convincing that he was a son of Hugh Moser of Cockington and Wincanton, Somersetshire, England. He had a sister Mary, who married his wife's brother John Maxson, according to many genealogists, none of whom cites the proof. If that is correct, Hugh's mother was living with the Maxsons on 24 Oct. 1671, when John Maxson was excused from jury duty because both his wife and his mother-in-law were ill. The mother-in-law in this instance had to be his wife's mother, rather than his stepmother because he had a stepfather John Harndell. This mother-in-law may have been the Lydia Mosher whose name precedes Rebecca Mosher (wife of Hugh) in the membership list of the Tiverton Baptist Church in 1680 for no other Lydia Mosher appears in the family until about 1695.

Hugh probably lived for a time in Westerly, but in 1669 he was admitted freeman of Portsmouth. Town records show him there as early as 1668, and in 1670, 1673, 1676, and 1677. In 1680 he was pastor of the Tiverton Baptist Church
